Teacher training for the student bootcamp

April/May 2021

The entrepreneurial bootcamp is an educational instrument that allows students to develop a lot of skills in a short period of time. In only a few days students will learn by doing how they can function in society as artists in different roles and different contexts. Students are challenged to make use of their creativity, their ability to collaborate and their communicative skills. They will explore different aspects of their artistic identity in a setting outside the walls of their educational institution.

Students taking part in the bootcamp, will be coached by teachers who have prepared themselves for this task in the DEMUSIS Teacher Training. This training consists of 4 online sessions of 2 hours each, in which the teachers explore different subjects such as:

- the objectives and learning outcomes of this form of education
- music in society
- coaching principles: the difference between leading & guiding
- feedback and assessment
- the design of an entrepreneurial bootcamp

The DEMUSIS Teacher Training is led by Renee Jonker, Head of the Master NAIP (New Audiences and Innovative Practice) at the Royal Conservatoire The Hague (The Netherlands) and member of the AEC-SMS Working Group 3: Entrepreneurial mindset for musician. The course is based on principles that were developed in the AEC Renew Project (2016-2019).
